

Attachments to Ideas That Become Our Identity

Guilt- Guilty as charged, A life confined. [Exiled state] – Freedom to flourish.

Regret- It is I that am regrettable. – My value is my birthright. It is mine to claim.

Victimhood- I've become my victimizer. – I hold tenderness and compassion for others by first extending it to myself.

Anger- The ways in which I withhold love and tenderness to the places within me that remain in need of still deeper reconciliation. –

Abandonment- I am ultimately abandonable. – As the created I belong to the Creator.

Scarcity- Im not enough, I do not have enough and there never will be enough. – I live in the abundance of that from which I was created.

Fear- I can never risk the exposure of what I'm fearful of. – Love is the final authority that holds domain as to who I am.

Suffering- I am the totality of what's wrong with me. - I am the light of that within me that was once darkness.

The cynic- I won't allow myself the vulnerability my heart holds. - I share the love and beauty of a broken heart made whole.
